From Sean Cockerham in Soldotna --

Heading down to the Kenai Peninsula today to cover Ted Stevens, photographer Marc Lester and I ran into none other than Don Young in the Era Aviation waiting area at the airport. Young was flying out to Kodiak for a day of campaigning.

Young seemed in a jubilant mood, pointing out the story in today's paper where Bill Allen said he can't be bought.

Young is down in the polls to Democrat Ethan Berkowitz, but said he's still feeling good about his chances. He said if he doesn't win that won't be the end of his involvement in Alaska politics. Young wasn't specific but indicated he could run for office again.
